

Maryhill

WINERY

Our Location

Located in the Columbia Gorge wine region on a bluff overlooking the Columbia River and majestic Mt. Hood, Maryhill Winery is a breathtakingly beautiful place to visit. Maryhill is a true destination winery offering a 3,000-square-foot tasting room, a beautiful covered arbor, picnic grounds and an adjacent 4,000 seat amphitheatre that hosts a world-class summer concert series.

Guests enter Maryhill Winery beneath the shade of a grape covered arbor and are transported to another world. Often called the “Mediterranean of the Northwest,” the Columbia River Gorge’s hot summer days make Maryhill’s deck the perfect place to unwind, enjoy a glass of wine and take in the view. When the weather cools, visitors cozy up by the fireplace inside the tasting room and gaze out the windows to the snow covered mountain tops and vineyards below.

Whether a wine “newbie” or aficionado, visitors never feel intimidated in the Maryhill tasting room. After a friendly greeting by Potter, Maryhill’s 130-pound Great Pyrenees “wine dog,” guests saddle up to the deeply aged Brunswick Bar to taste and learn about wines from Maryhill’s knowledgeable staff. Quarter sawn from Tiger Oak in the late 1800s, the tasting bar stretches 20-feet long by 12-feet high, with exquisite wood carvings and inset mirrors. Maryhill’s tasting room draws 75,000 guests from around the world each year who come to sample its award-winning wines and experience wine country.

Maryhill Winery’s 4,000-seat outdoor amphitheatre is built into an existing slope on the grounds next to the winery and tasting room. Maryhill hosts a world-renowned summer concert series and has welcomed artists including Willie Nelson, Bob Dylan, Crosby, Stills &

Nash, BB King and Don Henley. The amphitheater offers sweeping vistas of Mt. Hood and the Columbia River Gorge, enchanting lovers of music, wine and the great outdoors with its magic.

Offering “a world of wine in 40 miles,” the Columbia Gorge wine touring region is a great alternative to the hustle and bustle of the Willamette Valley or Walla Walla wine country. Located three hours from Seattle and an hour from Portland, Ore., the Columbia Gorge offers more than 30 wineries to explore in addition to Maryhill Winery.
